

[FirstMate, the all purpose remote system for boats]

Abstract

A remote control unit for providing remote operation of various electrical applications. This unit provides the convenience of using a remote control in a system designed to withstand the conditions of a marine environment. This unit operates on 12 volts and is easily installed and connected to most electrical application activation switches.